Shuttle landing reset Tuesday

Flight control managers waved off both Shuttle landing attempts Monday due to threat of thunderstorms in the Kennedy Space Center area. Space Shuttle Endeavour is scheduled to land Tuesday at 10:56 a.m. CDT with a deorbit burn occurring at 9:51 a.m. The second landing attempt is at 12:32 p.m. Weather forecasts indicate a continued chance of thunderstorms near Kennedy. If needed, Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., will be used as an alternate landing site Tuesday with the first opportunity occurring at 2:02 p.m. CDT.
